Class History

The morning was bright and sunny, but the faces of a certain group on that fateful day were sad and drawn. With the enthusiasm of condemned men they entered that strange, sinister building. They were the appointed group to attend the sophomore classes at Framingham High School. Oh, the melancholy of it all! Little did they know they were soon to become the leaders in the school. Little did they know they would be the illustrious, industrious, intelligent Class of 1947.

The Senior-Soph Dance was the first social episode of our high school career. This dance is the annual event where the seniors find excuses to stay away, the juniors are indifferent about the whole thing, and the sophomores, bless their souls, take their hearts in their hands and appear at the hall with bells on, or anyway with clothes to fit the occasion. However, we sophomores had a wonderful time. We were now recognized as among the inmates.

To guide our class during this rocky period of our existence the administration appointed Miss Morse, Mr. Vodoklys and Mrs. Olsen (Miss Plante). They were extremely helpful in assisting our class along the "straight and narrow."

In our silent manner we showed signs of coming leadership and promise. Yes, sir, three (3) from our midst reached the desirable goal of the first honor roll. What is more, that term seniors had only one, and those juniors had no one on the high honor roll.

Our first elections were things to behold. Vaudeville shows, music, and plenty of good old fight. After the paper had been cleared away and the weaker classmates buried, Peter Kastrinelis had been elected president; Francis Gavin, vice-president;

Robert Cummins, secretary; and Lois Mason, treasurer. We were now an organized body ready to rebel against all oppression from upperclassmen. However, the sun was moving nearer the zenith and the boys were moving nearer Fenway Park. Yes, it was spring. We licked our wounds, bandaged our brains, and were off in ecstasy for a good rest. We promised ourselves to sit around and dream about how we would treat the new sophomores and shed a tear here and there for those who didn't make it. May they rest in peace. They tried.

Soon, oh so soon, the day of reckoning was coming. Long lines filed to their classrooms. But the year was 1945 and the Class of 1947 was a junior class. It was our turn to have fun. (Oh, pardon me, little sophomore, I didn't mean to step on your face. Marshal, report this massacre to Mr. Sullivan.)

The first official act was to elect Miss Wiley as adviser, to guide and counsel us. Little did we realize then what a helper and friend she was to become in the future.

This year we held new elections for our junior officers. These elections were much different than those of other years . . . no music!

From Room 110 Mr. Lundberg appeared through dust and ballots, with the results. Arthur Zinck was elected president; Fran Bertolino, vice-president; John Paul, secretary; and Ray Savi, treasurer. This result only goes to show it's a man's world.

Report card time arrived and again three of our class inserted their names with understandable pride under the "first roll," a goal which we all desire but few of us attain. They were Russell Casella, Dot Dershowitz and Edith Pennucci.

Now, the year was moving swiftly onward and spring was fast approaching. Every young girl's fancy lightly turned to thoughts of hooking a man for the Prom, and the boys' fancy was filled with excuses for going to Boston that night. Our committees were functioning feverishly and the night was fast approaching. It would be interesting to measure the gallons of tears used by the ticket committee in pleading with the students to buy tickets. When the night arrived the whole affair went off successfully, however, and we all had a good time. On top of this, the class made money. A vote of thanks goes to all those who took part in this, the greatest of social events in high school.

Here again was the awaited time. We watched the seniors leave for good, realizing that we were lucky enough to return for one more year. With these thoughts in mind, we left for various jobs—the farms, the stores, and the Hemingway bowling establishment—to recuperate for another long grind in the next year.

The summer over, we now prepared to re-enter "that building" as supercilious seniors—upperclassmen, and lords of all the school. We all felt proud when we walked through the halls brushing the sophs and juniors from our paths and hearing them say, "There goes a senior!"

We realized all too soon, however, that we had to get down to business in order to graduate. As for outside activities, the annual senior-soph dance was held with great success, thanks to the hard-working committee members and some impromptu entertainment.

We elected our class officers in a new manner. First, on the recommendation of the administration, we had serious, worthwhile campaign assemblies. Second, the class office candidates divided into parties—the Square Deal and the Round Deal. Interest ran very high and never was there a more successful election. The officers chosen were Robert Haughey, president; John Paul, vice-president; Kay Gormley, secretary; and Robert Sebastian, treasurer.

Quickly following this, committees were established for graduation activities. The senior play, "Dulcy," was presented by a gallant group of our classmates, who had courage to face an audience and live.

Finally, the Prom and the Music Festival and Graduation rounded off the activities. Class night will soon be gone and the good times at Framingham High School will soon be a memory for us.

Assembling here as a class probably for the last time we look behind us, remembering what a great time we had in school. We are ending one phase of our life and entering an entirely new and strange one. It is our duty to ourselves, to our homes, and to our schools to gather together the knowledge and experience we have acquired over the last twelve years, apply it, and strive towards success and the future.

DAVID KUHN.

Class Prophecy

It is now 1960. At long last the taxpayers of Framingham have consented to build a new high school. When the wrecking company started tearing the old building (or should I say what was left of the old building) down, they unearthed a cache of money and an unopened crate of Popular Science magazines. With them was found a note leaving the magazines to that class of the century, the Class of 1947; the money was left to be disposed of as best suited the executors, who curiously enough were Jack Paul, Teresa Civitenga, Lois Mason and myself.

The other night each of the executors and I decided to locate an equal number of our old classmates to notify them of their newly acquired treasures. I say treasure because this issue of P. S. has a special article written by that fearless woman explorer who's been to the farthest corners of the earth (but still can't find a man) Marjorie Matson. But enough of this, as the man in Westboro said, "I'm off!"

My first thought was to visit the scene of the discovery. There I found Mr. Bush's three devoted assistants, Russ Casella, Bill Panarese, and Jim Dexter. Unwilling to lose any precious time while their new quarters were being constructed, they were continuing their research in a tent which they had pitched on the front lawn. Their main project of the week was to find out how many angels can stand on the point of a pin — without scratching their feet of course!

Leaving my engrossed friends, I started to hail Antonetta Verdy's taxi, but I suddenly remembered that I still owed her twenty-five cents from the time she drove me to the Saxonville Jungle Club. You know, that night club run by the little girl from the big woods, Joan Cole. So I hitched a ride on one of Bob Havner's new beer trucks. The driver, Walt Cragin, told me how Marie Caradonna and Lena Schiavi had started a rival company, but he said that Bob wasn't worrying because he had just hired those notorious gunmen, Bill Barrett and Jim Chiariello to hijack their trucks. I told Walt about the books and left him at the Centre. At first I was undecided as to whether I should visit "Skip" (alias the little spoke in the big wheel) Ballou or Marilyn Beckwith, who is now the president of the State Teachers College. Noticing a "Do Not Disturb" sign on the door of Skip's office, I decided to visit the college first. On my way to the president's office I met Walter Lech, who is now a Latin teacher at the school. I stopped just long enough to learn about Dave Bragg's appointment as commanding officer of the Larned Pond Coast Guard station.

Marilyn was extremely glad to learn about her luck, for she had heard that in this issue there were plans for building a supercharged racing car. I managed to get a ride back to town in Bob Twomey's new hearse. His assistant, Frank Dondero, sped all the way so that Bob's two secretaries, Norma Vitali and Louise Giorgi, could have it for their date that night. Just as we were pulling into town, a police cruiser drew up alongside and forced us to stop. Police Chief Dave Kuhn got out and gave Frank a good long lecture, just like the ones his wife, the former Helen Ross, gives him.

Since some of the Class of '47 had moved away from the old town, I decided that I'd better contact them next, so I made train reservations for the following day. Thus the next morning found me on my way to the station. As I passed the park, I noticed a group of people listening to a speaker standing on a soap box. Upon drawing closer, I recognized the orator as Anne Stearns. She was yelling something about temperance, but I didn't get a chance to hear her, for just then patrolman Dom Ferrazzi and policewoman Janet Clinton came along and broke it up. Anne's colleague, Nancy Dyer, kept beating Dom on the back and threatening him, but he wouldn't listen to her, even when she said that she'd get the best lawyer in the country, Marvin Cohen.

Later, on the train, I met Milton Burke, who was going on his vacation. He's now foreman of section 1, bench 3, assembly line 7, department 3, in building 5 at the Telechron. In my afternoon paper I noticed that those two mad chemists, Fred Walsh and Al Snow, had developed a new hair tonic. They were quoted as saying that their old principal, Mr. Magoon, was to be the first to try it. As the train sped through the countryside, I became aware of the passing landscape. For the last few moments we had been passing a huge factory, which must have been miles long. The sign in front identified it as the National Safety Pin Works, specialists in diaper pins. Milton told me it was run by those industrial magnates, Yanosick, Chao, and Turchi. I wondered if the Cummins' Zipper Plant, run by the Cummins brothers, Joe and Bob, would give them any serious competition.

Just then the man in front of me turned on his portable radio. I recognized Joe Conner's Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra. The announcer, "Big John" Whalen, remarked that Bill Williams and Merrill Young, who were playing first and second piccolo respectively, were in especially good form that day. The program was short-lived, however, for the owner of the radio suddenly began dialing for another station. For a second I heard the American Acca Pella Choir, conducted by Warren Stivers. The dial finally settled on the professional football championship game between the Chicago Bears and the Framingham Collegians. Joe Ferraro and Ed Korona were doing all they could for the old home town, but what could they do against the Bears' great player, Frank Fazzari? All of a sudden the man whose radio I'd been listening to turned around, and who was it but my old buddy, Bob Haughey. He told me that he was heading for Washington, and then I remembered that he'd just been elected to Congress. While we were talking, he opened his leather bound brief-case (the one with the gold trim) and took out a box of Frank's doughnuts. Mr. Bertolino senior was retired and Fran was running the business now. Bob called my attention to the fact that the holes in Frank's doughnuts were more perfectly round than those in any others. After a while we got to talking about books and Bob asked me if I'd read Martha Savage's newly published joke book, the one that has been banned in Saxonville. Suddenly the train pulled into the last station. As we left the terminal, I became aware of a large crowd off in one corner of the station. Elbowing my way through, I saw Barbara Seidman and Doris Metherall. From what I could gather, they were being mobbed by autograph hounds. Their press agent, Lucille Oliver, said that they would make their next appearance at the Totem Pole, where they would sing with Jack Carpenter's orchestra, his clarinet and his jumbo ice cream cones.

At this point, my task being completed, I now turn the narrative over to Teresa Civitenga.

The news that told me I was to aid in the distribution of the valuable discovery of Popular Science was given to me in a letter delivered by our good-natured mailman,

Charles Levine. This meant I had to get busy so that I could leave almost immediately. The first thing on my list was a visit to Rosemary Kelleher's "Curly Strand" hairdressing shoppe.

Refreshed by a new "set" and a manicure, and having just twenty seconds to catch a bus to the airport, I outran June Trevett's privately owned fire engine. Pauline Lozeau, the efficient bus driver, saw me from the corner of her eye, and stopped. As I hustled down Main Street, I was confronted with a perplexing brightness. It was Mary Lapina, wearing some of Kay's finest jewelry. Farther along I met Claire Ballentine, carrying boxing gloves, tennis rackets, baseball bats and bowling pins. She was on her way to teach Elaine Hogan's oldest son to defend himself against Nardo Orcianelli's youngest daughter's flirtation.

I was about to cross the street when a dignified character chanted, "One moment, but aren't you a school chum of mine?" I gazed for a few seconds and discovered it was Regina Cunningham chauffeuring Margaret Francoeur around the park. Walking still farther down, I passed by a store. There's nothing unusual about that, but there is in the way my olfactories were disturbed. Louis Holzman and his attractive assistant, Marguerite Brovelli, were mixing a compound which, when applied to hair, would cause it to reflect in such a way as to match your wearing apparel.

By mid-afternoon I was ready to leave the airport. I was assisted by the elegant stewardess, Peggy Gagen. She told me that John McCann, aided by Rita McDonald, was to pilot us to East Jallopy.

At East Jallopy I asked a crier yelling "Popcorn" for directions to the telephone office. The popcorn seller was Priscilla Hargraves. Chief operator Kathleen Knapp greeted me at the telephone office. Later on in the afternoon, operators Joan

Savage and Eileen Hill joined us for supper. They told me much of the whereabouts of the others I was looking for. They also told me how Robert Singerle couldn't get over operator Olga Missaggia's demanding a nickel from him while he was testing phones on telephone wires.

Many of our classmates had chosen business and commerce for careers. The following morning I passed by Doris Lension's "School of Culture." I wondered to what advantage she was putting her charms. She was teaching Joanne Maher's daughter how not to behave when men were present.

Farther along, my itinerary brought me to the "You-Name-It Hat Rack" owned by Josephine Lelli. The chapeaus were designed by Ruth Morse. Still farther along, I gazed into the "Crystal Ball" under the proprietorship of Alberta Cole. She told me Jeanne Bosworth had made a billion dollars. Jeanne had so much jewelry, so many sable and mink coats, gowns and whatnot that Elba Castelli and Clara Stapleton were her recording secretaries. Alberta told me that I would find some friends in the Metropolis Building and also that I'd be taking a short trip.

I hastened down to the Metropolis, where Lorraine Cavatorta received me at Harold Bailey's office. He was a manager for Harry Conant. Harry, it seemed, could never quite decide on what girl was meant for him. He aimed to find out. Now he is the head in a modeling establishment. I walked down the hall to Harry's office. Yola Donati received me there. Barbara Adams looked up long enough from her typewriter to say "hi." Harry showed me around the studio. His most fabulous models were "Bathing-Beauty" Patricia Farley, "Fur Queen" Barbara Marsh, "Personality Plus" Vida Horan, and "Hubba Hubba" Nancy Pezza. They were being photographed by June Woodworth.

Albert Cole was the proprietor of East

Jallop's outstanding night club. Soft tones greeted my ears as I entered. Anita Rougeau with her magic violin was accompanied by "Light Fingers" Ruth Sturgeon at the piano under the direction of the "All Girl Harmonic Orchestra" leader, Normand Dooley. Under his direction Marilyn Miller, Cole's favorite torch singer, blared, "I've Got a Yen for Men." Some of the gals in the chorus were Jane Murphy, Theresa Leveille, Mary Hetherton, and Jacqueline Boulter.

I was now set to take my short journey. I traveled as far as Westover-shoe, Vermont. I met conductor Anthony Tambollio, who gave me directions to the farmhouse of Katharine Staffeld. Katharine, surrounded by small Danas and Hughies, answered the doorbell. She was surprised and glad to see me. We talked about old times. The farmers out in Vermont were not very modern so I had to use the telephone to call home. As I picked up the receiver, I heard various and sundry noises. It was the voices of Betty Smith and Catherine Steeves. They were arguing over which one of them Roger Smith had promised to marry. Catherine had a beautiful television radio. Virginia O'Brien and Aura Lee Benner were there entertaining as "The Television Team."

Doris LeBlanc heard I was in Westover-shoe so she invited me to her house for supper. She served a hearty meal and for dessert I had a chocolate cream pie from the pastry shop owned by Ruth Dunham.

Now that I had supped, I felt better and was ready to go back home. On the way I met Lois Mason, who told me many of her experiences which I know she would like to share with you.

On looking over my list of friends I found that the majority had settled on the west coast. For my destination, which was California, Stephen Flanders loaned me his new invention — an atomic-copter (a combination of a P-38 and a helicopter run by atomic energy). I landed on the roof of Carolyn Irwin's penthouse in the heart of Hollywood. As I reached the street, I encountered a great crowd. I soon found that the commotion was caused by the inevitable arguments of Cynthia Chandler and LaVerne Butler. No sooner had this cleared up than going around a corner, I ran smack into Connie Areno (now Captain of the Hollywood Police Force), who fined me $5.00 for hitting an officer. (By the way, he finally got even with me after fifteen years.) While in the police station, I was entertained with a game of Chinese checkers by Bob Piccioli and Francis Stucchi (buck privates of the force).

When they let me out, my next stop was at the "Hash Slinger" Restaurant, run by Florence Doyle. Eleanor Sarno, Dot Powell and Flo Speranza were the waitresses. After I complained about a sixty cent overcharge, I was immediately taken care of by the bouncer, Thomas Malloy. Since Jimmy Robertson was the president of Metro-Goldwyn Mayer, I was provided with a pass to tour the studios, after a slight objection from the treasurer, Art Hammarlund, whose records were slightly off balance. By the way, Jimmy appreciated the Popular Science most of all, since it brought back the precious memories of "Mel" Small's chem class. His interest wasn't chemistry either! The first thing that attracted my attention was the beautiful voice of Jane Mills, accompanied by the violinist of the age, Jean Marshall, singing "Who Split the Atoms in Mrs. Murphy's Chowder," by that famed composer, Kay Sweeney.

I continued strolling along leisurely when all of a sudden I found myself flat on my face on the ground. I was both angry and astonished to find that I had been tripped by a gang of kids, the offspring of the former Mary Parkhurst, Georgianna Beaton, and Marion Davis, who were starring in "Three Buddies," written, produced and directed by Charlie Pantie. Before I had quite recovered, Keteria Correa came running toward me with her assistant, Jean Taylor, carrying a first aid kit; casualties are their specialties. They informed me that Mary McLellan was married and a model housewife. I also learned that Marjorie Thomas was dating a different boy every night and that Dick Murphy was taking up this practice. He had a regular schedule posted for dates: Monday, Jean Flynn; Tuesday, Betty Mitchell; Wednesday, Louise Beaton; Thursday, Margarite Loomer; Friday from 7:45 to 11:50, Rose Simonetta and from 11:59 to 2:40 P.M., Margery Preservati; Saturday, Pauline Maloof; and Sunday was used for recuperating. These girls were considered the "Big Six" of Hollywood Society.

Having had my fill of movieland, I continued to San Francisco to the "Franklin Primary School," of which Dot Randall was the principal. While talking, we heard a great commotion in the corridor and whom did we see but Rosanna Bertolino chasing her first grade pupil, Bob Piacentini, Jr., down the hall. (Takes after his father, doesn't he?) A few minutes later, Beverly Savage came into the office. She was taking a refresher course in the sixth grade arithmetic taught by Edie Pennucci.

It was now four P.M. and I decided to find a hotel to stay in overnight. I was directed by Betty Frazer, who was drawing cartoons on a street corner, to the "Southern Gal" hotel, managed by June Gallimore and owned by Charlene Tuck. The bellboys, or rather girls, Audrey Morris and Albina Banda, took my luggage and made me quite comfortable. Doris Scott, in her neat green and red uniform, took me up in the elevator to the fourteenth floor, where my room was located.

I ate my supper, made by Rita Dangelo, the head chef at the hotel. The floor show consisted of a duet by Penny Shoup and Edith Tambollio on the piano and bass fiddle; the guest of the show was the comedian Edith Spiegel, who put on a three-act play by herself. After supper, I met Connie Norton, who invited me to a party at Raphaella Palladino's apartment. (The two inseparable pals are both ace newspaper reporters.) I gratefully accepted the invitation and met Esther Zanella and Olive Ralston, who were there with their friends. We were enjoying ourselves and singing to our hearts' content when Joyce MacDougall and Josie Maselli (from the neighboring apartment) came barging in to inform us that we were disturbing their families. Ah, me! It certainly is a woman's world.

Hold your seats everyone. Here comes the prophet of the age, Jackie Paul.

As I wandered into the Civic League and took my seat among the spectators, I saw Vivian Dahlroth, Phyllis Knutson, and Edith Shaughnessy (now Mrs. Sebastian), watching a game. On the floor playing basketball were Buck Sebastian, Ray Savi, Art Zinck and Joe Tomasi. They were playing for a team called the "Framingham Screebers." During the half time the Framingham Girls' Professional Basketball Team took the floor. Among its players were the former stars of F.H.S.: Kay Gormley, Frannie Sanders, Dotty Dershowitz, Dotty Robelen, Doris Zimmerman, Geraldine Clark. Much to my surprise I found Howie Nickerson was coach and Fran Gavin scorekeeper.

After the games were over, I headed for the St. George Theatre. On the way I stopped at Tom Connors' drug store for a coke. Leaving, I noticed a large poster in front of the Memorial Building, "VOTE SQUARE DEAL, Sam Wallis FOR SELECTMAN." Continuing my walk, I noticed Ed Omiccioli's fish market. Finally I arrived at the theatre. I stepped up for my ticket and was surprised by a cheerful "hi" from Marguerite Wood, working as a ticket girl. Receiving my change, I next entered the theatre. As I groped for a seat I was startled when Bruce Maxwell, now an usher, stepped out of the darkness to help me. The news flashed on the screen, showing scenes of Palm Beach with Shirley McLean, Polly Milligan, Thelma Davis and Florence DeCollibus lounging on the beach. The first feature started. It was the latest in the thin-man series starring Charlie Allen in "Shadow of a Doubt." The other picture was "Terra Takes a Vacation," starring Theresa Abelli.

The pictures ended, and on my way out I stopped to buy a three-cent paper for five cents from "T" O'Grady. Returning to my hotel room, I picked up the Daily Hurricane, a newspaper owned and edited by John MacKinnon. Glancing through it, I noticed that F.H.S.'s oomph girl, Ann Wyckstrom, was a big success at the "Old Richard" ("Howard" that used to be until Dick Lager took over). Also on the same billing was "Dulcy," alias Anna Pellegrini. Both Ann and Anna were talented in singing. Reaching for a cigarette, I found that I had none. So I went down to the lobby and asked Vic Stillwell, the hotel manager, where I could obtain some. He told me from Claire Dumphy, the cigarette girl in the lounge. Entering the lounge, I met Fred Hakansson and Joe McQuade, now stars for the Bruins. After exchanging remembrances, I found that Joe had come downtown to get some more polish for his hockey trophy, when they decided to stop for a bite to eat. Also seated at another table were Alice O'Leary, Nancy Davis, Norma Zanella, Dotty Fistetto, Jean Connolly and Josephine Contigiani. Their sewing circle was enjoying supper.

After I had bought the cigarettes I wasn't very tired, so I decided I would go for a walk. As I walked, I thought how much the town had changed. I could look down the street and see John Neal's sporting goods store, Arthur Cuneen's photographic studio, Edmund Orton's machine shop, Millie Dooley's beauty salon, "Evie's Lunch," run by Evelyn Rediker, and Jim Brillhart and Dick Buzzell's candy store. Walking along, I met Mary McGrath, who is a secretary for the firm of Fred Gavigan and Ray Solari, lawyers. Starting back, I found I had walked farther than I had anticipated, so I rode back in Frank Ducey's taxi. I stepped out of the taxi as Chick Burr drove up in his car (that's what he calls it). George Avery, Chick's chauffeur, jumped out and opened the door. Chick stepped out of the car, but as he did he bumped into Dick Stickney, who was carrying a 500-pound piece of ice. There was a discussion, and when it ended I called the ambulance, which came almost promptly. (It took them only an hour and a half.) The driver and doctor, who were John MacLeod and Phil Morse, jumped out and gently threw Chick on a stretcher and away we went. We arrived at the hospital, where Lorraine Neas, the night nurse, checked the patient in. How long I sat in the waiting room I don't know, but it was seven copies of "Esquire" later when Lorraine told me Chick was all right. All that was wrong was that a bone was pressing on his medulla oblongata due to his falling on his cranium.

Then I retired to my hotel room to decide on what four should obtain the money found with the copies of Popular Science. After hours of deliberation I arrived at my decision — the cash would go to Pete Kastrinelis, Teresa Civitenga, Lois Mason, and John Paul.

And why not? We wrote the prophecy.

Class Will

We, the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Forty-seven, being of both mind and body, however unrelated the two, do hereby ordain and establish this document to be our last will and testament. In so doing, it is our expressed desire that this document be accepted as final in its entirety, that no disparagements be omitted or overlooked in any way, shape or manner, and that no clause, phrase, or word be interpreted as laudatory. In more common parlance, (quote) "To the faculty: Here's where we get on and you get off" (unquote).

CLASS BEQUESTS

I. To the junior class we, the seniors, proudly devise and bequeath our expert knowledge and skill, gained through years of experience, in cutting classes, writing our own excuse slips, and abstaining from homework.

II. To Mr. Magoon we leave a dam (spelled D-A-M), complete with hydraulic pumps, electric turbines, et cetera, to stop the flood of tears which students will shed upon the sounding of those prophetic words, "This is the last time you will hear these familiar notes—ding, dong, ding—over the P.A." (P.S.—Sob, sob.)

III. To Mr. Jones we leave an automatic pull-up and push-up counter to eliminate the excessive amount of gold-bricking prevalent during calisthenics.

IV. To Miss Squires we will an electric-eye to open and close the door. It is hoped that with this bequest will come the end of those lethal cries from 229, "Close the door, Mar-rrr-vin!"

V. To Mr. Vodoklys we bequeath a baby's rattle to keep his hands occupied while briefing the football team before a game.

VI. To Miss Hobbs we leave forty bales of paper plus fourteen dozen pencils with which it is hoped she can complete her much talked-of textbook, entitled "How to Be Perfect in Ten Easy Lessons"; also, the latest recording of her trig. class's favorite song, "I Don't Know Why, But It Does."

VII. To Miss Stanton we leave a free course in pole-vaulting plus a "Happy Landings" parachute with a lifetime guarantee in case of failure to operate.

VIII. To Miss Phillips we humbly bequeath a gyroscope and an automatic pilot to be installed in her automobile in the interests of public safety.

IX. To Mr. Bush we leave the following comment to be inscribed on a plaque and hung above his desk in the office. "He, who laughs, lasts!" (period), otherwise entitled "The Grass Is Greener on the Other Fellow." To quote his very words, "Since time immemorial, men of gray matter have considered this statement more fundamental than the now obsolete Law of Gravity" (unquote).

X. To Miss Williams we leave funds to provide her with a complete course at C.I.C. (the Camptown Institute for Clairvoyants) so that she may further increase her capacity for detecting beforehand the excuses students are to give for being dismissed.

PERSONAL BEQUESTS

I. I, Joseph Tomasi, do hereby cede to Dick (the Kid) Acton, all legal tenure over my title as B.T.O. of the senior class. In so doing, I reiterate, "That's the breaks, Dick; that's the breaks!"

II. I, Richard (Skip) Ballou, otherwise known as "Dapper Dan" and "The Little Spoke in the Big Wheel," leave to Joe Coco my ability to sleep through classes, which has earned me yet another name, "The Big Sleep."

III. I, Peter Kastrinelis, bequeath to Bob Campion, president-elect of the Student Council, my cares, wrinkles, and gray hairs, which I obtained while attempting to steer the "ship of state" through very rough seas, with the hope that he can keep his head above water.

IV. I, Lewis Holzman, leave to George Johnson my ability to "cloud the issue" in Mr. Lundberg's history class with dissertations on Newton's three laws of motion.

V. I, Vida Horan, leave all the whistles and wolf calls I receive because of my oomph, red hair, and savoir faire to Beth Stanton, who is by no means lacking in the above-mentioned commodities.

VI. I, Bill Williams, leave my slapstick humor and satirical remarks to John Grasso to further exemplify the old proverb, "The rich get richer, and the poor get poorer."

VII. We, Mary Hetherton and Joe Ferraro, leave to any budding romance of the junior class "our corner" outside of Room 336 to prove that true love can bloom even on barren ground.

VIII. I, Dave Bragg, leave to the school my new mathematics textbook to be published in the year 1950, which will contain the famous "Bragg Theorem" on how to find the coefficient of adhesion of lipstick.

IX. I, Dorothy Dershowitz, leave to Mary Ann Leveille all the corners I took along with me while speeding, plus my Sears, Roebuck license and private parking place in front of the school.

X. It is only just that we end this document with a quotation from a renowned personage in the annals of our own glorious history. With an excerpt from the memorable oration delivered by the eminent Professor John (A.B.C. Dingle-hoofer) Paul at our sophomore election campaign assembly some two years ago, (quote) "... And in conclusion" (unquote), we bring this, our last will and testament, to a close.

The above was recorded on the twenty-seventh day of the third month of the year nineteen hundred and forty-seven by the duly authorized class lawyer, Russell Casella.

Witnessed (through no fault of their own) by:

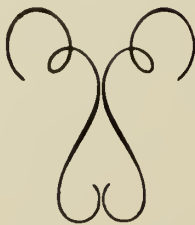

Bill Panarese, discoverer of numerical numbers,

Thomas "T" O'Grady,

Dana (is my bow-tie straight or isn't it?) Balch,

Martha (snake-charmer) Savage,

Joanne (there's a corollary that states ... ) Maher.

To be a hairdresser is Dotty's ambition;
To you this may sound like repetition—
We all know a success she will be,
For everything she does, she does perfectly.

DOMINIC FERRAZZI

Basketball, 3-4; Football, 2-3-4; Band, 2-3-4.

He must have something neat
To have swept Irene off her feet.

STEPHEN K. FLANDERS

Marshal, 4; School Publications Adv. Staff, 4; Baseball Mgr., 3-4; Chemistry Club, 2,4; Prom Patrol, 3.

Steve is a friend to 'all, but his interests are strictly chemical.

JEAN EVA FLYNN

Mary, Mary, quite contrary,
How far do you have to go
To meet Danny from Wellesley way,
To take you to the show?

WALTER LECH

Marshal, 4; Citizenship and Morale Com., 2; Stamps and Bonds Com., 3; Chemistry Club, 4.

Walter is truthful
And not very shy,
When he raises his opinions
How time does fly. (Books, too!)

JOSEPHINE MARY LELLI

Afghan Club, 2; Distributing Team, 2-3.

A cute little girl with eyes of brown—
Always a smile, never a frown.

Her mischief convulses her classmates and distresses her teachers.

ELIZABETH MITCHELL (Betty)

Citizenship and Morale Com., 2; Drivers' Club, 4; Christmas Boxes, 2; Glee Club, 2, 4; Lost and Found Com., 2.

Betty's quiet;
Betty's shy;
But she's a friend
Who'll get you by.

AUDREY MORRIS

If there is a man in Audrey's life,
She'll surely make him an ideal wife.

PHILIP W. MORSE, JR.

Baseball, 2; Track, 4; Aero Club, 2.
A flier is what Phil would like to be.

RUTH THELMA MORSE (Monsie)

Glee Club, 4.
A cute little lass, with twinkling eyes,
Takes matters without a care;
Of course! We all must realize
She's thinking of Richie Fair.

Some call her "Dee"; some call her "Red";
But "Wow!" is all that need be said.

MERRILL YOUNG

Band, 2-3; Distributing Team, 2-3; Senior Play Stage Com., 4.

The reason why all the girls do stare
Is his wavy, curly hair.

ARTHUR ZINCK

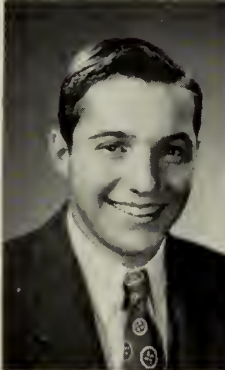

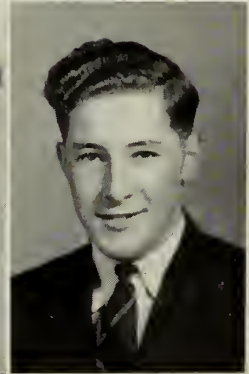

Student Council, 4; Marshal, 2-3; Basketball, 2-3-4, "F," 3-4; Baseball, 2-3-4, "F," 2-3-4; Football, 2-3-4, "F," 3-4; Distributing Team, 2-3; Class President, 3; Graduation Day Com., 4; Prom Ticket Com., 3; Senior Play Ticket Com., 4; Class Night Toast, 4; Senior Nominating Com., 4.

As an athlete he's a thriller,
And with the girls he's a killer.

ARTHUR CUNEEN

Aeronautics Club, 3; Senior-Soph Dance Patrol Com., 3.

Could it be because he's bashful?
Arty does seem very shy.
We think these are the reasons
A she can't catch his eye.

This is Really Only the Beginning

Three short years at Framingham High and you find that coveted diploma within your reach. To you, the Class of 1947, we at Dennison extend our sincere congratulations. We hope that the years ahead will be as pleasant and as profitable as those which have just passed.

Many of you will soon be looking for jobs; you will be beginning then an entirely new phase of your lives. We feel, in this respect, that we have something special to offer. We do not have any jobs like those in your favorite movie. It seems unlikely that a scout from MGM will see any of you girls pounding the keys and send you off to Hollywood. It is also improbable that a young man who enters our employ will rise overnight to a vice-presidency. It is very likely that you will find, as many others have, that working conditions at Dennison are excellent, that your fellow employees are friendly and congenial, and that opportunities to advance compare favorably with those in any other plant.

Whether you are a girl interested in an office or a factory position, or a young man who might like a job in our manufacturing or warehousing organizations, we suggest that you visit our Employment Office now. Mrs. Crowley or Mr. Hussey will be glad to tell you about any openings that exist. Don't wait and discover that the job you would have liked is gone.

Dennison

We usually have a limited number of summer time jobs for both students and teachers. If you are interested, our Employment Office will give you further details.
